FRONTIER AIRLINES LAUNCHES NEW SERVICE AT DETROIT

Fares as low as $20 one-way to celebrate new service

DETROIT - Frontier Airlines begins new non-stop service between Detroit and Phoenix today and reinstates seasonal service to Denver and Trenton, N.J. To celebrate this new service, Frontier is offering special introductory fares as low as $99 one-way on these new routes as of today.

Nationally, Frontier is adding new non-stop service in 41 markets today throughout the United States and is also re-launching service in 27 seasonal markets as well. Service to both Denver and Trenton will operate daily, and service to Phoenix will operate on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Currently Frontier has service to Orlando, Fla.

"Travelers between big cities have enjoyed low fares while many markets have remained overpriced and underserved," said Daniel Shurz, senior vice president - commercial. "Frontier's low fares in these new markets will benefit millions of new fliers who are forced to drive because they haven't found affordable air travel options – or they simply stay at home."

"Total passenger traffic at Detroit Metropolitan Airport has jumped 8 percent for the first two months of 2016," said Airport Authority CEO Thomas Naughton. "A key factor in our growth is new service offered by airlines like Frontier. Adding new air carrier routes provides our travelers with more reasons to choose DTW and ultimately benefits our local economy."
