Work Description: Schumaker & Company and its staff members have been involved in a large number of information technology and business process improvement projects. Our role has been to work closely with management in optimizing operations through a comprehensive review of technology within various organizations. We approach our information management and technology professional services and consulting practice from a user's perspective. Our goal is to empower technology users and to help them communicate more effectively, work more productively, learn more creatively, and equip them to make significant contributions to their organization's business goals and objectives. This means getting closer to our clients and working harder to understand their needs. We must help our clients integrate technology by learning about how they work, how information flows through their organizations, what they'll need in the future, and where they're succeeding or failing.
